

BE PREPARED TO BE SURPRISED, EVERY DAY!

We Canteen Food Court opened at World Trade Center Amsterdam on the 6th of February. They turned the WTC selfservice restaurant into an everchanging and dynamic food court. Every day different local food entrepreneurs take the stage and provide a wide range of specialties.

Of course, you will be able to lunch on homemade soups, filled rolls, seasonal salads and fresh juices but We Canteen also offers a constantly changing selection of hot meals from around the globe – think Asian, Arabic, South American and Mediterranean specialties like burritos, paella or curry. Every day, two or three local catering companies will set up shop at the WTC. ‘Our entrepreneurs serve dishes from all over the world so we will be able to find out, once we’ve started, which best fit the Zuidas’ international workforce,’ says company founder Maaïke de Reuver.

With a stable of over 350 different food firms – from oyster experts to cocktail shakers and tapas kings to pita queens – We Canteen is bringing some of the best café, bistro, single dish and food truck entrepreneurs to the WTC.

We Canteen was launched five years ago by millennials Maaïke de Reuver and Charlotte van Leeuwen to bring a fresh new approach to incompany catering. Born out of frustration at the standard fare served up in so many corporate and university restaurants. The company now runs over ten successful food courts in Amsterdam, The Hague and Eindhoven and has built up a network of a wide variety of local catering companies.
